

PRESS RELEASE: CR-Z CONCEPT REVEALED

The production version of our new sporty hybrid coupe will go on sale in 2010

On sale:
Summer 2010

Our latest hybrid will be unveiled at the 41st Tokyo Motor Show later this month. The CR-Z Concept 2009 is the most recent prototype of a compact, agile coupe using Honda's IMA technology. The production version, based on the CR-Z Concept, will go on sale in the UK next summer. It will be the world's first sporty hybrid coupe, and the first ever petrol-electric vehicle to employ a 6-speed manual transmission.

Following on from the introduction of the Civic Hybrid in 2006, and the recent launch of the Insight in 2009, the CR-Z will be the latest edition to our ever-expanding hybrid range.

With a hybrid version of the Jazz also coming, being kinder to the environment doesn't mean you have to compromise on choice.
